

Meeting Street

Spring 2011 FREE Parent Seminars at Meeting Street

Meeting Street is committed to providing parents and caregivers with the support they need to enhance the education and development of their children. Our FREE Parent Education Seminars are held at the Meeting Street Campus on 1000 Eddy Street in Providence. All seminars are FREE to ALL FAMILIES. FREE child care will be available. Registration for the seminar and a request for child care are required for each seminar.

To register for a seminar and to set up child care, please call the Meeting Street Seminar Office at 533-9299 or e-mail your information to info@meetingstreet.org.

A Place for Everything and Everything in Its Place: Organizational Strategies for Children and Families

Tuesday, March 1 6:00 – 7:30 p.m. at Meeting Street

Presented by Emily Lennon, Manager of Meeting Street's Occupational Therapy Services, Elaine Van Deusen, a speech and language pathologist at Meeting Street and Carolyn Dalgliesh, Founder of Systems for Sensory Kids

Children often struggle with the ability to organize both their things and their time. Disorganization can affect a child's ability to get dressed in the morning, start and complete their homework, find their shoes or get ready to go just about anywhere. It can be frustrating for everyone in the family. In this seminar, attendees will get a better understanding of why some children tend to be disorganized and will learn strategies that will help school aged children to improve their organization skills and time management abilities. Tips on how to organize bedrooms, set up study areas, create daily schedules and manage the overall environment will be provided.

